Introduction

Padas, also known as arudha padas, were defined by Parasara in Brihat Paaraasara Horaa Saastram. The word pada means a symbol. The expression arudha pada means a raised symbol. While the Sanskrit word bhava used for a “house” means “meaning or concept”, the Sanskrit word pada means “word or symbol”. Words and symbols are tangible and observable externally, while meanings and concepts conveyed by them are intangible and internal. The thoughts I have in my mind are intangible to people, but the words and symbols I use to express them are tangible. World uses the latter to get an idea of the former.

Similarly, padas are supposed to show external and tangible articles reflecting on various matters. For example, the 4th house shows the happiness from vehicle (intangible) and the pada of 4th house shows vehicle itself (tangible).

Calculations: Questioning Current Understanding

When padas of various houses are defined, people normally take entire signs as houses and end up making sign based calculations. The exact longitudes of houses (house cusps) and house lords are not used by people.

With this approach, they find the rasis occupied by various padas but there are no specific longitudes associated with them. However, houses from the padas were referred to by Pararsara, e.g. 11th house from pada. As 300°–330° from a reference is the 11th house from that reference, finding the 11th house from pada requires knowing the longitude of pada precisely. Thus, the standard method seems questionable. There must be a different method that uses the longitudes of the house cusp and its lord and gives a precise longitude for pada.

Another issue is that people find padas in divisional charts (amsas) by using the planetary positions in divisional charts. Though they only use the sign occupied by houses and planets, finding padas based on exact longitudes as mentioned above, in divisional charts, requires using divisional longitudes. However, is it logical to use divisional longitudes? Don't we find chara karakas, nakshatras etc based on physical longitudes alone and not based on divisional longitudes? Don't we find positions of chara karakas and mathematical points like Ghati Lagna based on physical (rasi) longitudes and find the divisional chart positions and longitudes based on them? Should we do a similar thing with padas?

I will offer an alternative definition of padas and padamsas and then define a simple transit principle related to a significant divisional longitude correlation based on padamsas.

Calculation of Pada

Take the longitude of the cusp of a house. Take the distance from it to the planet owning the sign where this cusp is placed. Take the same distance from the planet. The resultant point is the pada of the house. If pada is between 0° and 30° or between 180° and 210° from the cusp of the house, then subtract 90° from it.

Example: Suppose lagna is at 14Vi07. Suppose Mercury is at 3Ar08 and Saturn is at 15Ar06. Let us find the padas of 1st and 5th houses.

The 1st house extends from 14Vi07 to 14Li07 and the cusp of the 1st house is at 14Vi07. Lord of the 1st house is Mercury (lord of Vi). The distance from 14Vi07 to 3Ar08 is $199^\circ 1'$. Adding $199^\circ 1'$ to 3Ar08, we get 22Li09. This is not in the 0° – 30° or 180° – 210° range from 14Vi07. So we do not subtract 90° . Pada of 1st house is at 22Li09.

The 5th house extends from 14Cp07 to 14Aq07 and the cusp of the 5th house is at 14Cp07. Lord of the 5th house is Saturn (lord of Cp). The distance from 14Cp07 to 15Ar06 is $90^\circ 59'$. Adding $90^\circ 59'$ to 15Ar06, we get 16Cn05. This is in the 180° – 210° range from 14Cp07. So we subtract 90° and get 16Ar05. Pada of 5th house is at 16Ar05.

Padas of Houses from Planets

Just as we can see houses from lagna for various matters, Parasara taught that we can also see houses from Sun and Moon and house significators (karakas). For example, the 5th house from Jupiter shows children in addition to the 5th house from lagna. Padas of houses can be found from karakas as well. In case of Rahu, houses are counted anti-zodiacally and all calculations are done by counting anti-zodiacally.

We can find padas of houses from karakas too, using the above definition. Suppose lagna and Jupiter are in the same sign. The pada of the 5th house from lagna and pada of the 5th house from Jupiter would be in the same sign with the standard sign-based definition. With the above longitude-based definition, both can be at different positions as the exact longitudes are used.

Example: Let us find the pada of the 10th house from Mercury in the above example.

The 10th house extends from 3Cp08 to 3Aq08 and the cusp of the 10th house is at 3Cp08. Lord of the 10th house is Saturn (lord of Cp). The distance from 3Cp08 to 15Ar06 is $101^\circ 58'$. Adding $101^\circ 58'$ to 15Ar06, we get 27Cn04. This is in the 180° – 210° range from 3Cp08. So we subtract 90° and get 27Cn04. Pada of 10th house from Mercury is at 27Cn04.

One may note that both the 5th house from lagna and the 10th house from Mercury have the cusp in Capricorn and yet their padas are at different longitudes and in different signs. As per sign-based method used by most people today, padas of the 5th house from lagna and the 10th house from Mercury would be identical.

Calculation of Padamsa (Divisional Longitude of Pada)

Just as we do not find chara karakas or nakshatras based on divisional longitudes in divisional charts and find them based on rasi chart alone, we find padas based on rasi chart alone and then map them to divisional charts.

Find the longitude of the pada of a house in rasi chart based on the physical longitudes of houses and planets, as explained in previous sections. Then treat that pada as a point (just like planets and lagna or mathematical points like ghati lagna) and find its position in various divisional charts.

Example: Take the example considered earlier. Pada of 1st house is at 22Li09. A planet or lagna or a mathematical point that is physically placed at 22Li09 is placed at 19Ar25 in D-9, 11Ta35 in D-10 etc. So we say that the pada of 1st house is at 22Li09 in D-1, at 19Ar25 in D-9 and 11Ta35 in D-10.

Principle

The principle I found is very simple:

At the time of a major event in life, an important planet has a close conjunction with, or a close aspect on, the natal divisional longitude of the arudha pada of a relevant house, in a relevant divisional chart. Nakshatra dasa lord or antardasa lord or a planet related to that house in the natal rasi or divisional chart may be considered for transits.

It should be noted that houses can be considered from lagna, Moon, Sun and karaka (significator), though we usually consider houses only from lagna.

This principle by itself may not help one time events. But, it may help increase our confidence in a possibility or narrow down when one has a large window based on other techniques. This principle is expected to be applied in conjunction with other principles of Jyotish and is not meant to replace all standard principles of Jyotish.

In this research, I used partial aspects (e.g. 3/4th aspect on 4th and 8th houses) described by Parasara and also used the divisional longitudes of planets freely. I used true nodes. I used Jagannatha ayanamsa, which is a variation of Lahiri ayanamsa. It fixes the Chitra star at 180°, instead of letting it wobble around 180° as happens with the regular Lahiri ayanamsa. It also fixes the two-dimensional plane onto which planets are projected, to the mean Sun-earth plane (which is also known as the Vishnu-nabhi plane), instead of projecting the planets to different two-dimensional planes at different times as happens with the regular Lahiri ayanamsa. All the calculations used are available in the free software “Jagannatha Hora” that can be downloaded at <http://www.VedicAstrologer.org/jh>.

³ Though people see career from D-10, I found better correlation of political power in D-5 than in D-10. Pt Sanjay Rath mentioned the use of D-5 for political power in a book, but I have not seen many astrologers using D-5 for political predictions. My research, especially using precise divisional longitudes, suggests that D-5 is the chart for political power.

Observer, observed and observation merge into one, without any differentiation whatsoever. Recent yogis such as Trailinga Swami, Shirdi Sai Baba, Ramakrishna Paramahansa, Ramana Maharshi and Swami Sivananda are known to have reached that state and also beyond it (i.e. simultaneously being absorbed in duality and non-duality and realizing their oneness completely).

Observations

The correlations I found in this research are too good to merely be random coincidences. I am convinced that there is something really worthwhile here.

Divisional Longitudes

This research article, along with the previously published research articles titled “Stationary Planets in Transit” and “Transit of Nakshatra Dasa Lord: A Specific Principle”, establishes that divisional longitudes are a valid concept and that there are some valid transit principles based on them. Researchers will do well to consider longitudes of planets in divisional charts and not ignore them.

⁶ Some information about the yogi of examples 30 and 32 can be read at

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/vedic-wisdom/message/3481> (“On Manish and Sadhana” by Narasimha)

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/vedic-wisdom/message/3440> (“Rama Naam Satya Hai – 1” by Rajarshi)

Arudha Padas

This research redefines arudha padas as mathematical points having precise longitudes, just like Ghati lagna, Pranapada lagna, Kunda etc, instead of being entities that span entire signs. This research also shows the importance of the divisional longitudes of those arudha padas.

The use of arudha padas demonstrated in this article is possibly the tip of the iceberg and there are a lot of uses of arudha padas. Once the calculations are accurate, sincere and committed researchers can unearth many valid principles.

Special Divisional Charts

Research into divisional charts not mentioned in the available manuscripts of Parasara's teachings, such as D-5, D-6, D-8, D-11 etc, perhaps hold value. The principle described in this article can perhaps aid in the researches into special divisional charts. Objective principles help one draw more confident conclusions.

Impact of Birthtime

The change in the divisional longitude of a padamsa is of the same order as the change in lagna as birthtime changes. The birthtime in the example charts was rectified using other techniques and considered to be reasonably accurate. However, birthtime in some example charts may be a little less accurate than some other example charts and that could explain why the conjunctions and aspects are really close in some examples and go upto 4-5 degrees in some other examples. This technique could develop in future into a technique to rectify and verify birthtimes.

Recommendation

I strongly recommend researchers to stick to Jagannatha ayanamsa, true nodes and the house system I deduced earlier based on BPHS (0-30 deg from lagna being the 1st house, 30-60 deg being the 2nd house and so on) for fruitful research into simple and replicable principles like this. I also recommend using arudha padas and their amsas (divisional longitudes) as per the method suggested in this article.

Conclusion

A simple principle related to a correlation of the transit longitudes of planets important to various matters in various divisional charts and longitudes of relevant natal padamsas was described and illustrated using many examples. If you like this knowledge, please feel free to refine it, use it and spread it. If not, please leave it.

It is hoped that intelligent and sincere students and researchers of this divine subject will take this knowledge further and contribute to a renaissance in Jyotish and other knowledge related to rishis.

Acknowledgment

At a time when I was spending several hours on Jyotish research everyday, but afflicted by pride, passion, attachment and expectations, my spiritual master Dr Manish Pandit entered my life and slowed me down. Under his sage influence, my attachment was cut off. I was filled with vairagya (dispassion) towards Jyotish as my mind was turned towards god. After a few years of withdrawal internally, he asked me to research into some areas of Jyotish and share my findings with the world. He told me that I had some important contributions to make to Jyotish and that he had slowed me down earlier because I was doing things with a wrong attitude and with an attachment. He wanted to first change my attitude and work out the entanglements that bogged me down, before I could finish my task.

He asked me to pursue Truth and simply fulfill what I see as my dharma towards Jyotish, without any entanglements, attachments, agendas, fears, frustrations or expectations of any kind from anyone, and without thinking about what kind of events may be triggered by my actions in future. I am grateful to Manish for his guidance.

Another thing is that after I started offering aahutis (oblations) of ghee (clarified butter) to Maharshi Parasara in fire at the end of my daily Chandi homam, some good ideas started coming to me now and then at the end of post-homam meditation sessions. These ideas that came from nowhere and without conscious contemplation or thinking, turned out to be far superior to ideas that came in the past from labored efforts by my logical mind. I consider these ideas to be blessings of Maharshi Parasara. I bow to the Maharshi.
